Section - A (Reading)

1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow-

- (A) Fundamental rights and duties are the basic rights of an Indian citizen in the Constitution of India. These fundamental rights and duties apply to all the citizens of India irrespective of their religion, gender, caste, creed, race, etc.
- (B) Rights and duties are two sides of the same coin. One can't exist without the other. Duties without rights are merely slavery. Similarly, rights without duties amount to lawlessness. In any civilized society, rights and duties must go side by side.
- (C) But in today's world, everybody talks much about his rights. There is a great hue and cry if our rights are infringed. But nobody seems to bother much about his duties. That is why there is great unrest in our present-day life. Actually duties come first, and rights afterwards. Many a time one man's right is another man's duty and vice versa. For example, every man has the right to have an undisturbed sleep. So it becomes the duty of his neighbour not to switch on his television at high volume. If we want to enjoy our rights we should act in such a way that the rights of others are not trespassed. It can happen only if we take due account of our duties also. In short, rights and duties are complementary things and not contradictory.

- (D) There are some basic rights that every citizen must have. These rights are ensured by the constitution of every democratic country. We may also use the term 'basic freedom' for them. For example, a citizen should have the freedom of movement and freedom of worship according to one's faith. We can also talk about the need to be free from various evils.
- (E) It is difficult to agree on which rights should be guaranteed to a citizen. For example, does a child have the right to be educated in his/her mother-tongue? Some enthusiasts may say, "Certainly". But others may say that while everyone must have a right to education, the government should not be forced to spend money to employ special teachers for the language of every group and community. Take another example. Does every adult have a right to job? Some will say, "Yes". Others will disagree and say that this is a privilege, not a right. They say that in these days of population explosion, it is not possible for any government to ensure full employment.
- (F) There can be disagreement on such controversial issues, but there can be no disagreement on such things as the freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want, and freedom from fear. Every nation worth the name must ensure these rights for her citizens. If the citizens are ensured these rights, they are also expected to perform their duties. The first and foremost of these duties is to obey the laws of the land. They should pay all the taxes due to them. They should not indulge in any illegal and antisocial activity. They should be true patriots and noble sons of their motherland. While it is their right to have social security, it is their duty not to do anything that might endanger the security of their motherland. It is their duty to give their all when the security of the nation is endangered.

(G) In short, the rights and duties of a citizen are like two parallel lines of a rail-track. In order that the train of a nation may run smoothly and securely, both the lines must be laid properly. They must go side by side.

- (a) Why are rights and duties called two sides of the same coin? 2
- (b) Why is there great unrest in our present-day life? 2
- (c) What, do you think, comes first-rights or duties? 2
- (d) What should we do if we want to enjoy our rights? 2
